Get involved!

How do you want to change the world? What skills do you bring to it? What are you passionate about? What are your values, and how do you want to live them?

During your studies, you can explore all these relevant questions, and build and use your professional skills to make the change happen! Also, you can find friends to envision the future together, debate, put theory into practice, and create communities of hope.

You may have heard about personal ecological footprints, a calculation of the impact of your individual resource consumption. The result shows how many planets humanity would need if everyone lived like you. It's a good start, but it neglects the positive impact our engagement has! The concept of the »Handprint« shows us what to be proud of, because it includes the positive impact your actions have in regard to sustainability. Additionally, the personal footprint leaves out what impact the structures around us have. So, let's change them together and increase our handprint!

Currently, we are facing severe challenges, and solutions are complicated, creative, fun, diverse and sometimes messy! With this guide, we make the emerging futures accessible and empower you to live into your values. You can contribute to a sustainable campus, university, student life and society! Get involved!

AKN - Working Group Sustainability

The Working Group Sustainability (Arbeitskreis Nachhaltigkeit AKN) is the umbrella organisation of sustainability activities all around the campus of Hohenheim.

We promote institutional change, green student initiatives as well as a lively campus through interactive events with topics like degrowth, green finance, sustainability in teaching, mindfulness, pub quizzes and city tours.

We are active in university politics as well as networking at and outside university. We believe universities should be inspiring places that give us the skills to address our global challenges.
